CLEARWATER, FL (April 29, 2019) -- Get ready to roll the dice and test your real estate skills. It's the 19th annual Charity Works MONOPOLY® Night where players compete in a fast-paced championship match for high-priced properties like Park Place and Boardwalk. Or worst-case scenario: Go to jail!

It all happens Saturday, May 11, at the Belleair Country Club. The Honorable Frank Hibbard and his wife Teresa have been selected as this year's Honorary Co-Chairs. "They were chosen based on their dedication to our community and longtime support of our organization's mission of Helping Those Who Help Others®," said Charity Works CEO Chris Renfrow.

The celebrity host, John Wilson, will emcee the MONOPOLY® Night tournament and guide players through the spirited competition. When the dice roll to a stop, the top three selected players will receive spectacular prizes provided by Tampa Bay Magazine. The event also includes live, silent and chance auctions.

Ticket prices range from $175 to $250 for individual players and $150 for non-players. Included is an opulent buffet dinner with dessert at the prestigious Belleair Country Club. Event committee Co-Chair Suzan Decker Ross, designer/CEO of Decker Ross Interiors said: "As a legacy co-presenting sponsor of Monopoly Night, I encourage everyone to experience this fun and exciting board game adventure. Everyone leaves a winner particularly knowing they are supporting a good cause that touches so many in our community."

Frank Hibbard is a Senior Vice President with Steward Global Advisory Partners. He has served as Mayor of Clearwater for two terms. Frank is currently the Chairman of the Board of Ruth Eckerd Hall.
